
The Detective's Notebook

Breaking the Bank
Katherine's Ponderings . . . What have we learned?

1. If you are working to adjust the Feng Shui of a business, it is wise to ask about the homes of the executives. What is happening at home matters—across the board.

2. Listen for clues that show up between the lines.

3. We need the confidence to ask for what we need, even from a chief executive.

4. There is always more to learn. This time we needed to recognize the design details that can deplete all eight, life situations at the same time.

5. Sometimes we need to simply let go, not knowing the outcome. It may be made known years later.
